

Say it 'Bil Araby'

If you're the kind of gal who has always wished for that one ring to finally find its rightful place on your right finger, then quickly do away with that wish and think again. Today's woman may not need a diamond to maintain her status, but a ring certainly helps - it's about finding the right ring.

What better to wear on your fingers than your own initial made out of eighteen carat gold, embellished with a semi-precious stone and screaming of a style statement?

From locally based Lebanese designer Nadine K, the Bil Araby ring series (which literally translates to 'In Arabic'), is a collection of rings and bracelets that draw on the inherent beauty and lyricism of the Arabic alphabet, updated and designed to slip onto the fingers of modern girls. And the best part? The only person you're saying 'I Do' to, is yourself! So go ahead, indulge yourself... But try to avoid sporting the entire alphabet on your hands - we know it's hard, just remember less is always more.

The Bil Araby ring series is available at S*uce, Village Mall.
